RE: Referendum Questions
Maine voters will be asked next Friday to approve the "Power Authority of Maine". Periodically someone has the great idea that public ownership of utilities will result in more efficient, less costly service. To my mind, "it just ain't so".

While at times we have had no great fondness for the utility monopolies, it has been found that on the whole they are more efficient and less costly than many State agencies. No matter how PAM proponents may postulate, they would be, in our opinion, another agency of the State: seven members appointed by the Governor, approved by the Executive Council.

Of course, to sweeten the pot, some brilliant legislator put in the Act that PAM would pay 1/20 of a cent per kWh sold, to the state's general fund, of which 75% would be used to support schools. All the time we thought they were trying to generate power electricity, and all the while they wanted to support education. PAM may have its good points worthy of support, but not from here.

The lottery proposal has some of the same faults as PAM. One of which is the setting up of a quasi-state agency of five members. The board decides what type of lottery will be held. One provision evidently approved by the legislature in one of its more pell-mell moments, exempts from Maine State Income Tax any prize received from the lottery. Wonder why that is? It could be income wouldn't it? It is our opinion that the state's voters could buy a "pig in a poke", without even the saving grace of a "soft horse" if this were approved.

The question of land acquisition for Parks might be a little touchy. But we think the voters should take a hard look at this, because already the outstanding bonds of the State amount to more than $2,500 per capita.

The proposed constitutional amendment to regulate municipal borrowing by the legislature, while possibly desirable in some people's thinking, won't get our "yes" vote. Present towns can borrow up to 1/2 of the last locally assessed valuation. It is already a fact that there is less and less local governmental units can do without looking to Aug. 1st for guidelines, which probably they haven't got around to developing yet.

The second proposed amendment deals with the Legislature and the veto power of the Governor. According to our interpretation the effect of this would be that only the legislature that enacted the legislation that a Governor vetoes could overrule the veto. We believe that this is only common sense, and would prevent a recurrence of a situation that happened in the early days of the 106th legislature when attempts were made to override a veto of legislation enacted by the 105th. ## UNITED METHODISTS AGAINST A STATE LOTTERY

Social Principles of the United Methodist Church state: "Community standards and personal life styles should be such as would make unnecessary and undesirable the resort to commercial gambling, including public lotteries, as a recreation, as an escape, or as a means of producing public revenue or funds for support of charities or government."

Maine Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church in session Nov. 21-24, 1973, noted "with dismay the increasing reliance of New England State governments upon lottery income as a source of government revenue, especially to support public education".

This is sponsored by the Administrative Board of the Bethel United Methodist Church, who urges you to defeat the State lottery proposal on November 6th.

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The deer hunting season opens in this area, Nov. 5. There have been erroneous dates in some newspapers that have caused confusion.

We were pleased with the interest shown at the open house at the sewage plant. There was a good turn out of townspersons plus some from out of town. The Chamber of Commerce is going to have a representative from the engineering firm speak before their group in November. Now the plant is in operation we are getting more inquiries as to the way the sewage is handled and what the end result is.

The Highway Dept is stockpiling winter sand this week. We are hauling sand from West Bethel this year as our regular source on the Northwest Bethel Road was denied us because of shortage of material. We are investigating the possibility of purchasing a parcel of land that has sand and gravel on it as it is becoming so difficult to find people who want to sell to us when they can realize more by disposing of it themselves.

TELSTAR RIDES CREST TO 38-8 WIN OVER LIVERMORE FALLS

—To Seek 18th Win in Row
at Mexico Friday Night, 7:30

Doug Brooks scored four touchdowns to spearhead the host Telstar Rebels to a 38-8 victory over Livermore Falls in their Mountain Valley Conference football game last Saturday afternoon.

It was the eighth straight triumph for the unbeaten Rebels and extend ed their two year win skein to 17. The luckless Andies were tagged with their seventh setback in eight outings.

Telstar scored three touchdowns in the first quarter, two in the second, one in the third and none in the final stanza. Livermore Falls garnered its points in the final period.

Telstar was on the move with the opening kick-off with a 32-yard return by Wayne Cummings setting the drive in motion. Brooks capped the march by hitting over from 13 yards out. Gary Wight placekicked the extra point.

Cummings put the Rebels on the scoreboard again in the next series when he recovered a blocked punt in the end zone for six points. The kick for the extra point was wide of the mark.

A short punt late in the opening period gave Telstar good field position and it cashed in quickly with Brooks culminating a 32-yard march by tallying from the 10. The kick failed and the period closed with the Rebels on top 19-0.

Another short punt gave Telstar another scoring opportunity early in the second quarter and moved for the score which came on Brooks' nine yard jaunt. The extra point was again wide of the target.

Before the first half closed the Rebels struck paydirt again — this time on a 49-yard sortie by Brooks. Wight impeded the count to 32-0 with his conversion.

Telstar's only points in the second half came on a 60 yard scamper by Peter Blake. The conversion try was blighted.

Telstar reserves saw extended service for the remainder of the contest.

Livermore Falls availed a shutout as Rick Shaffer galloped 81 yards for a counter in the final stanza.

DISPLAY OF OIL PAINTINGS AT BETHEL LIBRARY

An exhibit at the Bethel Library for the next three weeks is a collection of oil paintings by Jack Dennis of Sunday River. Mr. and Mrs. Dennis and children moved to Sunday River following his retirement from the police department, Saugus, Mass. While living in Massachusetts Mr. Dennis received his painting instruction from Edward McKenney, Donald Mosher and Tony Estrelli.

A Bill Kennedy to Dennis' benefit pass was good for the two point conversion.

Brooks was the big gunner for the victors picking up 109 yards in eight carries.

Randy Olson, Tim Rosenberg and Frank Howard were defensive standouts for the Rebels.

Dave Lovewell was a standout in the Andies' defensive unit.

Telstar will journey to Mexico for its 18th game Friday night in search of their second undefeated season in succession, 18 straight wins, and indisputed rights to first place in the Mountain Valley Conference.

GREENWOOD CITY

Mrs. Colista Morgan, Corres.
It wasn't deep summer, but it was the time of sunshine where mountain peaks stood out like duck silhouettes on the sun flare of the morning. It was late October and still golden. The noonday sun pouring its liquid gold everywhere.

Corres, the shifting line of flyers passed above the pond calling, calling in clear voices.

Early afternoon, Ruth and I set out to find the remains of the home of the five Milliet brothers. Only once in my life had I been there; then as a child and Ruth had never been. We knew exactly where to enter the forest by an old wood grade, otherwise we had nothing to go by.

At each step a rustle of leaves greeted our progress. In the thick-set growth a single golden beam shone through tree trunks.

We crossed a brook; the water glistened cool and clear. I pictured it as a place where the boys, when small, had come to dream as they gazed into its depth and waited for a minnow or a eago to delight; a surprise when the first fish began to bite.

We decided to look for signs of farming; old apple trees, stone walls and open field. Although more than thirty years have gone since the buildings burned these signs were our hope of finding the cellar.

The side road we took, but found a roughly square puzzle of rotting logs from a former lumber operation.

Retracing our steps to the wood road we continued on. Soon we discovered a pile of rocks, a sign of land clearing, then a stone wall. We were confident now for who but the early New England pioneers tried to use the rocks they found in their fields and pastures to build stone walls? This back-breaking task of clearing fields was endless, each spring the plow turned up more rocks.

Our next discovery was an opening and to the right a lovely maple in full color.

That should have been in the yard, Ruth remarked.

We approached it and just beyond were enough we found the foundation, and what a foundation! Great rocks and flat stones, surely built to last.

"For many years we say 'Oh, do you remember the story of ...' Now I wonder how and when, so well off the only living brother, did your father build it, Maudie?"

I could picture a sunbright yard and lawn, were there only hickory? I saw there were six paved roses, hedges and trees, and lamp posts, shrubbery, too.

There could have been no doubt. To make the story say no, a large tree, except those of the farm, still stands, playing a weathered old clam. Around two birds, a barkling dog, barking in the kitchen, fat pigeons popping in the cone.

It was an odd mixture of my fears of the unusual and pictures of extremes, a mixed picture they. This seemed to belong to the last family. But the house still before it faded.

Many pigeons grew around the old house, like a bird in the cedar near the residence.

Very likely there were more a hundred in flight, some along a path, the pigeons small, of a size to fit the mouth of a friendly bird.

We explored the old foundation, the first, the first, dropping the old house to its solid old bones.

We left the old house, walking along a field road we returned to the car and on to Rocky Woods.

Early January left off the thick forest thicket and sunlight. We prepared for a deep search and the day went on to the great excitement of great birds reported to the world. These birds were carefully taken for later grand tour. They proved especially good and their grand tour was a grand tour. Many birds were seen every day and of many kinds. In the Red and Blue are as common as the Green and Yellow and some parts were unknown to the state. The day came at sunset some of them in a great noisy flocks and landed them all. In this respect they birds is equally named.

After spending ten hours the pigeons were cleaned and dried and the oil was to the outside and so light on a light red carded flock. Grown 12 oz. $1.25 each.

cate, about three inches long and one fourth of an inch wide. Neither of us knew the kind. Velvet moths were in the rocks and stumps in most places that we looked.

Continuing now around the outside edge we started for the top. Here came the harder climb yet . . . up over rounded granite, clinging to dried out roots or small trees; first testing them. It was the part of wisdom to take it easy and not put undue strain on an old stump or tree. So sweating and resting we made slow progress but finally came to the crest. We were rather far back so went down into a small gulley then out to the edge of the bald granite top which seemed to drop to the ground.

Across from us rose the tower on Shaw's Ledge; one of the highest we found . . . a stone wall, high points among the rockstrewn domes up there! After a period of travel his duties. Glenn Emery has been transferred to Poland because of the road. In moments I said, "Look, there's the road!"

We could look down on the ridges and see in the distance the towering tops of the great white pines that once in lofty isolation spread their great plumes to the wind.

Their long horizontal branches framed an unforgettable picture. Pine is a sun-loving tree and the abandoned fields once provided a natural nursery for them.

As we looked across the valley we might have described the scene as a "treeescape!" The conifers in somber green background seemed to highlight the colors of the hard wood.

Turning right we set out for our downward "slide," but we continued far to the right and sure enough

We had found a new way down, easy, and no slides.

So day ended; the sun dropped behind the hills leaving a rosy glow which faded into twilight . . . twilight, that magic time when the frost jewels fall and are deposited across the lawn, to greet you at the coming dawn.
